Nurturing Literacy In the Early Years
An educational video for parents and caregivers

A 17 minute video that helps parents and other adults understand why they should – and how they can – help children begin to acquire literacy during the first three years of life. The video presents recent exciting discoveries in neuro-science and models activities that viewers can do in their own homes with their own children to encourage the growth of early literacy. Reserve your copies now and receive prioritized mailing and delivery. The video is available for shipping now.

Video pricing varies according to quantity of videos purchased (see price schedule at right). All prices quoted are for videos only. Shipping and handling are extra and will be quoted upon receipt of your order. Shipping and handling charges vary according to quantity ordered, destination and shipping priority requested.
